Humanities Days at Montgomery College presents Seth Michelson, who will discuss his experiences facilitating poetry workshops for undocumented minors in maximum-security detention. By reading their poems with us, Dr. Michelson will help these young people share their searing stories -- since they themselves cannot.

Tuesday October 23, 2018

12:30pm-1:45pm
Germantown Campus
BE 151

3:00pm-4:30pm
Rockville Campus
Theater Arts Arena

6:30pm-8:00pm
Takoma Park/Silver Spring Campus
Commons 211

Dreaming America: Voices of Undocumented Youth in Maximum-Security Detention is a bi-lingual anthology of poetry and prose by undocumented incarcerated minors, selected by poet Seth Michelson from writing workshops he conducted in the most restrictive detention center for undocumented, unaccompanied youth in the U.S. Edited by Michelson and with a preface by Jimmy Santiago Baca, Dreaming America is a gesture of hospitality, an invitation to Americans to share in the lives of children who believe in the United States as a land of hope.

Sponsored by:
The Global Humanities Institute of Montgomery College; The Paul Peck Humanities Institute of Montgomery College; the Montgomery College Department of Performing Arts, Rockville Campus and Casa de la Cultura.