

Bachelor of Science in Health Sciences (BSHS) in Health Intervention and Disaster Response

This is the recommended program of study for students planning to obtain a Montgomery College associate's degree and transfer to GW to complete the Bachelor of Science in Health Sciences (BSHS) in Health Intervention and Disaster Response.

The BSHS in Health Intervention and Disaster Response program is designed for students with previous international health care experience. The program draws heavily from both the civilian and military challenges and successes experienced during natural and man-made disasters, and other crises, both domestically and abroad. Graduates of this program will be well positioned to provide leadership and expert counsel in all matters of disaster and crisis related healthcare issues for myriad agencies at the local, regional, national, and international levels.
