Middle States Accreditation Self-Study: Listening Tour Sessions

Every ten years, our institution is required to demonstrate that it meets the Middle States Commission on Higher Education’s requirements and standards for accreditation. This year, Montgomery College begins the planning process for this self-study and peer review. In this information session we will provide information about our accreditation self-study process and the standards that we are required to meet. In addition, we will revisit the College mission and discuss how it relates to our individual roles on a daily basis. Participants will be able to provide input on what they feel are Montgomery College’s strengths, challenges, and opportunities and suggest what the College should seek to gain through the self-study process.
